Thanks to

Those anglers who took the time and effort to attend tag training workshops, then put their fishing skills to work to tag, release and record tagging data.

Those individuals out on the water in the recreational and commercial fisheries, and those working onshore in seafood businesses, who took enough interest and effort to report tags in recaptured fish.

The Virginia Game Fish Tagging Program, on behalf of the co-directors and the Virginia Recreational Fishing Advisory Board, greatly appreciates the dedication of those contributing to this effort to expand understanding of the fish stocks on which we all depend.

This work is the result of research supported in part by NOAA Office of Sea Grant, U.S. Department of Commerce, under grant No. NA90AA-D-SG045 to the Virginia Graduate Marine Science Consortium and the Virginia Sea Grant College Program

VIRGINIA GAME FISH TAGGING PROGRAM

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Virginia Game Fish Tagging Program (VGFTP), a cooperative project of the Virginia Marine Resources Commission and the Virginia Institute of Marine Science (VIMS), set records for fish tagged and fish recaptured during 1998, its fourth year of operation.

The VGFTP is primarily funded with revenues from Virginia's saltwater recreational fishing license. In addition, support for the program is provided by Virginia's Sea Grant Marine Advisory Program at VIMS.

A total of 8,735 fish were tagged by trained angler volunteers in 1998, a 68% increase over tagging effort in 1997 (5,213 fish tagged). The increased productivity was the result of intensified tagging by individuals, since overall program participation was similar during the two years. During 1996 participants tagged 3,536 fish compared to 1,348 fish in 1995, the program's first year of operation. Gray trout accounted for 34% of the tagging effort and black sea bass (30%). Over four times as many sea bass were tagged compared to 1997, the first year the species was targeted. More details on distribution of 1998 tagging effort among target species are presented in Table 3.

Recaptures of tagged fish totaled 900 for the year, a four-fold increase over 1997 (221 total recaptures). In 1996 a total of 104 tagged fish were recaptured, while 106 fish were recaptured in 1995. The increase in recaptures was significantly influenced by the referenced surge in tagging of black sea bass. Sea bass also exhibited the highest cumulative tag return rate (15.4%) among targeted species in 1998, accounting for 50% of returns.

PROGRAM GOALS

The VGFTP is designed to accomplish three specific goals:

1. To develop a quality-oriented tagging program utilizing recreational anglers to enhance data collection efforts for specific species of fish;
2. To educate anglers about the need, benefits, limitations, and operation of tagging programs and other information gathering efforts directed toward saltwater finfish, including the proper methods for reporting the recapture of tagged fish; and,
3. To reinforce efforts to educate anglers about the benefits and proper techniques for catching, handling, releasing, and tagging fish.

PROGRAM OPERATIONS

The VGFTP places limits on participation and requires attendance at a minimum of one training session for all volunteers. This provides the program directors an opportunity to interact with all program participants to help assure the quality of their tagging efforts.

Registration is on an annual basis, beginning in January. Participation is generally limited to about 160 anglers. Anglers participating in the program are requested to renew their registration each January with new registrants filling out the program. Training workshops for new taggers were held during February and March in Virginia Beach, Newport News, Wachapreague, and Gloucester Point. Instruction and discussion of proper fish handling techniques, tagging techniques, procedures for the accurate and efficient reporting of tag events, and the goals and philosophy of the VGFTP were featured at these sessions. Many experienced anglers, while not required to repeat the workshops, still attended the programs, contributing practical tips to the sessions.

Receiving tagging equipment and going through written tagging instructions, anglers also practiced inserting tags in fish obtained from local seafood markets. The practice element of the training program clarifies questions about proper tagging technique, reinforces proper fish handling procedures, and allows anglers the chance to develop a feel for the tagging process while under supervision. Mistakes in tag placement and improper anchoring of tags, common occurrences during practice tagging, provide an excellent learning situation through which anglers immediately benefit from their mistakes and gain confidence in their skills.

TARGETED SPECIES

Black Drum	(Pogonias cromis)
Black Sea Bass	(Centropristis striata)
Cobia	(Rachycentron canadum)
Gray Trout	(Cynoscion regalis)
Red Drum	(Sciaenops ocellatus)
Spadefish	(Chaetodipterus faber)
Speckled Trout	(Cynoscion nebulosus)
Tautog	(Tautoga onitis)

No changes in targeted species were made during 1998. These species are targeted by the VGFTP principally for the following reasons: 1) they contribute significantly to Virginia's recreational fisheries, 2) gaps exist in the scientific data available on the species regarding how "Virginia's" populations of these species interact with, and impact upon, the overall populations of which they are a component, 3) the species are typically not targeted by other directed tagging efforts in the the region; and 4) tagging studies can provide insight into aspects of the species' life history, e.g., data on local and regional movement patterns of young as well as sexually mature fish, documentation of species' utilization of specific types of habitat or water areas (i.e., the Hot Ditch), limited growth data, and insight into survival rates of released fish.

Finally, tagging programs may prove to be as valuable regarding the questions they raise as well as the answers they provide. Quite often the information provided by tag and recapture events in larger-scale tagging programs point toward inconsistencies in accepted theories regarding fish movement and behavior patterns. Such occurrences may suggest the need for, and help to define, future fisheries research.

1998 TAGGING AWARDS

Volunteers participating in the VGFTP have the opportunity to earn recognition for their conservation efforts. Participants tagging a minimum of 25 fish are awarded Conservation Certificates. During 1998, 54 participants qualified for conservation awards compared to 49 in 1997 (Table 1). In comparison, 32 conservation awards were earned in 1996 and 16 in 1995.

The angler tagging the most fish for the VGFTP in 1998 was Mike Perron, who tagged over 1,000 fish.

Special recognition is given to the anglers tagging the most fish in each of the species targeted by the VGFTP. Because of his special tagging effort during 1998, Mike Perron dominated these awards. Tom Heinz again won the award for tagging the most gray trout, while Ron Hughes and Rob Holtz were recognized for tagging the most red drum and spadefish, respectively.

As part of its ongoing effort to reward quality tagging efforts, not just numbers of fish tagged, the VGFTP recognizes the volunteer, from the current year or a prior year, who has the most tag returns during the year from fish he/she originally tagged. In addition, anglers having 10 or more tagged fish recaptured during the year are listed in Table 2.

Fishermen returning information and tags from fish they have recaptured are awarded caps and decals featuring the VGFTP logo.

TAG AND RECAPTURE DATA

VGFTP volunteers tagged and released 8,735 fish in 1998, the largest annual tagging effort to date for the program (Fig. 1). Distribution of tagging effort among targeted species for 1998 changed considerably from that for 1995-97 (Table 3). Like 1997, the top species tagged was gray trout (2,944), accounting for about 34 % of the total tagging effort. However, black sea bass increased dramatically from just under 6 % of the total effort in 1997 to 30 % in 1998. Red drum and tautog each represented 15-16 % of fish tagged while spadefish and speckled trout each accounted for about 5 %. Black drum and cobia only contributed 1-2 % of the year's tagging effort.

The large increase in tagging of black sea bass, over four times the number of fish tagged during 1997, overshadowed additional increases in tagging effort for other species. For example, the number of black drum tagged in 1998 was almost three times greater than the previous year (Fig. 1). Compared to 1997, efforts in 1998 produced increases in tagged fish for gray trout (up over 600 fish), tautog (over 500 fish), red drum (over 100 fish), black drum (over 100 fish), and speckled trout (almost 90 fish). Absolute numbers of tagged cobia and spadefish dropped slightly from 1997 levels.

Tag-recaptures in 1998 were also distributed among targeted species differently than the previous years, again the result of black sea bass dominating the pattern (Table 3).

Tag returns totaled 900, more than four times those of the previous year (Fig. 2). Black sea bass represented 50 % and tautog 26 % of total recaptures. Much smaller portions of the year's tag returns were accounted for by red drum (10 %), spadefish (4 %), speckled trout (4 %) and gray trout (3 %). Cobia and black drum returns were only 1-2 % of the year's total. Increases in recapture rates occurred between 1997 and 1998 for all targeted species except black drum, gray trout and spadefish (Fig. 3).

Some tentative patterns are beginning to emerge from the four year data base, confirmation of which will depend upon continued tag returns. Preliminary observations follow, as well as comments on particularly interesting tag returns during the year. Detailed recapture data by species are presented in tables at the end of the report. In 1998 the program primarily used T-bar tags for the first full year.

Black Sea Bass

Only targeted since July 1997, black sea bass accounted for 30% of the relative tagging effort during 1998 and 50% of the year's tag returns. The majority of tagged fish were 8-10 inches in total length with 60% of recaptures occurring within 20 days of release (an additional 20% occurred within 21-40 days of release).

In part because of relatively mild winters the past two years, but also the short times at large for 80% of recaptured fish, only a small proportion (14%) of recaptures indicated any movement of black sea bass from the site of release. No clear movement pattern from inshore to deeper offshore waters was observed. However, there were a few documented instances of movement in both directions between inshore and offshore structure sites.

- Two fish (6.5-8" TL) tagged September 13, 1998, at the Hampton Roads and Monitor-Merimac Bridge Tunnels; both recaptured October 18 (35 days at large) south of Virginia Beach at the 4A Buoy Drydock.
- A fish (9.75" TL) tagged October 12, 1998, at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel (CBBT 2nd Island); recaptured November 21 (40 days at large) at the Santore wreck off Virginia Beach.

- A fish (11" TL) tagged April 26, 1998, at the Santore wreck; recaptured September 25 (152 days at large) in Lynnhaven Inlet.
- A fish tagged September 27, 1998, at the Chesapeake Light Tower; recaptured at CBBT 4th Island October 23 (26 days at large).

Movement of black sea bass also occurred between the Chesapeake Light Tower and the slightly inshore Santore wreck.

- Three fish (9.25-12.5" TL) tagged November 9, 1998, at the Santore; all recaptured November 19, 23 and 28 at the Light Tower (10-19 days at large).
- A fish (8.5" TL) tagged March 29, 1998 at the Santore; recaptured October 13 at the Light Tower (198 days at large).
- A fish (9" TL) tagged July 7, 1998, at the Light Tower Reef; recaptured September 20 at the Santore (75 days at large).

The greatest distance moved by a black sea bass occurred with a fish tagged January 10, 1998, at the Santore. The fish (10.25" TL) was recaptured off Cape May, New Jersey on February 12, 1998 (only 33 days at large).

As previously indicated, the majority (86%) of sea bass tag returns consisted of fish being recaptured at the site on which they were tagged. Such returns indicate either the fish stayed at the structure during the entire time at large or, if moving away for some period, returned to the structure. Examples follow:

Fish tagged in spring 1998 and recaptured on the same site in late summer-early fall:

- Chesapeake Light Tower and the Light Tower Reef: seven fish (9.5-14" TL) 108-168 days at large; four fish (8.5-10.25" TL) 178-207 days at large; one fish (11" TL) 301 days at large.

Fish tagged and recaptured on the same site in late summer to fall (Aug.-Nov. 1998):

- Tiger Wreck southeast of Rudee Inlet: three fish (8-9" TL) 106-204 days at large.
- 4A Buoy Drydock (south of the Tiger Wreck): three fish (9-10" TL) 104-105 days at large.

A contributing factor to the large number of tagged and recaptured black sea bass was the re-release of significant numbers of recaptured fish with their tags left in the fish (207 or 46% of 1998 total recaptures). The majority of such releases, conducted by tagging program participants, resulted in 32 recaptures of the same fish a second time, primarily at the 4A Buoy Drydock but also at the Tiger Wreck, Chesapeake Light Tower, CBBT (2nd Island), and several sites inside the Bay off Cape Charles. Nearly all second-time recaptures occurred at the initial tagging site with times at large ranging from "zero" days (recaptured same day as second release) to approximately 60-80 days. Several interesting multiple recaptures were noted:

- 4A Buoy Drydock: fish (9.75" TL) tagged and released August 23, 1998; recaptured same site September 13 (21 days at large) and released again with tag; same fish recaptured at the site a second time December 4 (82 days at large), length estimated at 12.5" TL; this was one of the longest combined periods at large for a multiple recapture of the same sea bass.
- 4A Buoy Drydock: fish (10" TL) tagged and released September 13, 1998; recaptured the same day two additional times and released with its tag in place.

- 4A Buoy Drydock: fish (10" TL) tagged and released September 12, 1998; recaptured four additional times, on September 26 (14 days at large), again on October 3 (7 days at large), and again on December 3 (63 days at large); this fish was also caught a second time on December 3 after which it was released with its tag.

Tautog

As in the previous three years, the 1998 tag return rate remained relatively high (13.7%), second only to that for black sea bass. There was no indication of any pattern of inshore-offshore seasonal movement of fish. This further supports a significant difference in Virginia's tautog population compared to the fishery from New York to Rhode Island. Of the 236 recaptures in 1998, 93% documented fish staying on (or continuing to frequent) the site at which they were initially tagged. Same-site tag recaptures in 1998 documented numerous instances in which fish were at large for up to one year or more. These conventional tag return data provide important information for comparison with data currently being collected on tautog utilization of natural and artificial fishing sites in lower Chesapeake Bay, a study using sonic tags to track daily, weekly and monthly tautog movement patterns.

Interesting 1998 recaptures include:

- A fish tagged March 30, 1995, on the Turn of the Century Wreck off Virginia Beach (also known as the Winthrop Wreck), recaptured on the same site July 26, 1998, being at large 1,214 days (3.3 years); increased in size from an estimated 11" TL to 14.5" TL.
- Turn of the Century Wreck-seven fish (10-12" TL) tagged in December 1997; recaptured twice at same site, five in January 1998 (15-27 days at large) and again July 3, 1998 (120-195 days at large).

- Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel (4th Island)- seven fish (12.25-18.75" TL) tagged in April/May 1997; recaptured at same site in April/May 1998 (329-384 days at large).
- Concrete Ships (off Eastern Shore's Kiptopeke State Park)- four fish (11.5-15" TL) tagged October 24-25, 1997; recaptured at same site October through December 1998 (358-407 days at large).
- Back River Artificial Reef- 14 fish (9-14.75" TL) tagged October/November 1998; recaptured same site October through December 1998 (1-31 days at large).
- A Fish (14" TL) tagged offshore December 20, 1997, on Turn of the Century Wreck (about four miles off Virginia Beach); recaptured inside the Bay at the CBBT (3rd Island) on October 26, 1998 (312 days at large).
- A Fish (14" TL) tagged December 17, 1997, on Texeco Wreck off Cape Charles; recaptured across the Bay at Thimble Shoal Light October 24, 1998 (311 days at large).

Red Drum

Efforts this year resulted in 551 tagged and released fish, a 26% increase over 1997. Concentrations of 14-22" TL fish at the "Hot Ditch" power plant outfall in the Elizabeth River during the winter, and primarily Rudee Inlet during September/October 1998, accounted for the majority of tagged fish. Recaptures at the Hot Ditch (48% of year's total) helped increase the species' tag return rate to 12% (Fig. 3). The warm water outfall area is being documented to hold good numbers of red drum over approximately a six month period (November through April). There were multiple returns on four fish during the year at the Hot Ditch (fish recaptured two different times). Winter tagging of red drum at the Hot Ditch has produced a few returns from diverse areas inside Chesapeake Bay; however, no definitive dispersal pattern can be determined at this time

Small red drum tagged during the fall in Rudee Inlet, Lynnhaven Inlet and other lower Bay areas continue to be documented to migrate southward in the fall to the area between Nags Head to Cape Hatteras and Cape Fear. Movement was often quite rapid, sometimes occurring in 1-7 days (Fig. 4)

Interesting recaptures follow:

- Multiple recaptures of four fish (12.5-18" TL) indicated small drum can remain in the area of the Hot Ditch (Elizabeth River) from October 1997 through early April 1998.
- A fish (16.5" TL) tagged at the Hot Ditch November 5, 1997; recaptured at the same location just over one year later on November 15, 1998 (375 days at large).
- A fish (14.75" TL) tagged September 5, 1998, in Lynnhaven Inlet; recaptured at Corolla-Duck, NC September 12, 1998 (7 days at large).
- A fish (16" TL) tagged in Lynnhaven Inlet October 8, 1998; recaptured at Kitty Hawk, NC fishing pier October 13 (5 days at large).
- A fish (16.25" TL) tagged in Rudee Inlet October 9, 1998; recaptured at Kitty Hawk, NC October 10 (1 day at large).

Black Drum

While numbers of black drum tagged increased significantly during the year (195 compared to 109 in 1997), the tag return rate declined slightly (8.6%). Although the year produced only nine recaptures, these included the first returns on large fish. Two large fish, tagged in August 1997 at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel (one at the first island and one at the second island), were recaptured in May/June 1998 at the respective CBBT islands where they were tagged. The rapid southward movement of juvenile black drum along the beach in fall received additional documentation from two returns.

Notable black drum recaptures include:

- A large fish (48" TL) tagged August 9, 1997, at the CBBT (2nd Island); recaptured at the same location May 25, 1998 (289 days at large).
- A large fish (49" TL) tagged August 29, 1997, at the CBBT (1st Island); recaptured at the same location June 21, 1998 (296 days at large).
- A fish (18" TL) tagged October 25, 1997, in Rudee Inlet; recaptured at the same location March 24, 1998 (150 days at large).
- A fish (8.5" TL) tagged October 14, 1998, in the Sandbridge surf; recaptured at the Nags Head Fishing Pier (NC) October 15 (one day at large).
- A fish (9.25" TL) tagged September 18, 1998, in Rudee Inlet; recaptured at Oregon Inlet, NC October 4 (16 days at large).

Speckled Trout

Numbers of fish tagged increased somewhat in 1998, reaching nearly 500 fish. However, the tag return rate remained low at 3% (Fig. 3). Although there have been a few interesting returns, there were no definitive movement patterns indicated. As with small red drum, a few returns indicated that the Hot Ditch outfall area may hold numbers of speckled trout (11-22" TL) from November/December 1997 through February/March 1998.

Interesting returns include:

- A fish (17.5" TL) tagged at the Hot Ditch November 1, 1997; recaptured same area February 26, 1998 (117 days at large).
- A fish (16" TL) tagged at the Hot Ditch November 15, 1997; recaptured same location March 21, 1998 (126 days at large).
- A fish (17" TL) tagged at the CBBT (2nd Island) December 12, 1997; recaptured at Jane's Island, Big Annesmessex River, MD on May 21, 1998 (160 days at large).

Spadefish

The rate of tag return remains high (7.7%). However, the quality of tag returns continued to be disappointing given the level of tagging effort. Almost all recaptures occurred within two to three weeks of release and at the site of tagging. However, two long-term returns provided hope that more such returns will occur next year.

- A fish (14" TL) tagged at the Chesapeake Light Tower Reef on July 7, 1997; recaptured at the Chesapeake Light Tower (same general area) July 3, 1998 (361 days at large).
- A fish (16.5" TL) tagged at the Anglo-American Wreck August 17, 1997; recaptured on the same site and released again with its tag on August 17, 1998 (365 days at large).

Cobia

While numbers of fish tagged declined slightly this year, tag return rates continued to improve (13.5%). More long-term recaptures continued to document that cobia ranging from 48-52" TL return annually to the lower Bay.

- A fish (48" TL) tagged off Back River June 16, 1997; recaptured on Inner Middle Ground Shoal June 14, 1998 (363 days at large).
- A fish ((52" TL) tagged July 5, 1997 on Inner Middle Ground Shoal; recaptured on same site June 29, 1998 (359 days at large).
- A fish (49.5" TL) tagged on Anglo-American Wreck July 14, 1997; recaptured at Latimer Shoal July 12, 1998 (363 days at large).
- A fish (48" TL) tagged on Inner Middle Ground Shoal June 28, 1997; recaptured on Latimer Shoal August 17, 1998 (415 days at large).
- A fish (38" TL) tagged June 13, 1998, on Inner Middle Ground Shoal; recaptured at York Spit Light September 6, 1998 (85 days at large).

Some interesting gray trout returns follow:

- A fish (20" TL) tagged May 24, 1998, at the CBBT (1st Island); recaptured at the CBBT (4th Island) June 14, 1998 (21 days at large).
- Two fish (19.75" and 20.5" TL) tagged May 29, 1998, at the CBBT (2nd Island); recaptured at same location July 10 and 14, 1998, respectively (42 and 46 days at large).
- A fish (15.5" TL) tagged May 25, 1998, in Rudee Inlet; recaptured at same location July 13, 1998 (49 days at large).
- A fish (12.25" TL) tagged September 30, 1998, at the CBBT (1st Island); recaptured at Kitty Hawk, NC November 12, 1998 (43 days at large).

Gray Trout

In spite of tagging effort on gray trout leading all other species again this year (34% of all fish tagged in 1998), tag return rates did not exceed 1% (the case for the third straight year). There were only 26 recaptures during 1998 with days at large generally ranging from about one week to 45 days. To date, consistently useful information has not been obtained relative to the amount of tagging effort. The situation suggests possible problems with tag retention (tag loss rates documented to be 10-31% using T-bar tags in 1997 tank experiments) or non-detection/reporting of tags. Unless return rates improve in 1999, the species may be dropped from the program.

WHAT TO DO WHEN YOU CATCH A TAGGED FISH

1. The most important information on a tag is the tag number. This is the key to identifying the fish. It is critical to record the exact tag number.
2. If you plan on releasing the fish, quickly write down the tag number, measure or estimate the fish's length, then gently release the fish with the tag in place. Multiple recaptures of a tagged fish are particularly valuable to the tagging program. If you keep the fish, remove the tag for reporting purposes. In either case, contact the tagging office with the tag information (757-491-5160).
3. Measure and record both the total length and fork length of the fish, or estimate the length if you do not have a measuring device. Provide an estimated weight for the fish.
4. Record the species of fish, date of the catch, and exact location where the fish was caught.
5. Record any information about the fish which could be useful; for example, any unusual markings or wounds.
6. When you report the recapture of a tagged fish, you will be provided with information about the fish (when and where it was tagged, size when tagged) and you will be given a logo award from the Virginia Game Fish Tagging Program.

HANDLING AND RELEASING FISH

1. Plan ahead. Minimize stress and exhaustion by using tackle strong enough to land fish quickly. Set hooks quickly to minimize the opportunity for fish to swallow hooks and avoid the use of treble hooks. When practical, bend down the barbs on hooks or use barbless hooks.
2. Minimize the handling of fish, and do not touch the eyes or gills. Large fish are best released by leaving them in the water and removing the hooks. Small fish should be brought on board and handled with a damp towel or damp cotton gloves, which will minimize damage to the skin and protective slime of fish. Control the fish, gently but firmly so it cannot "flop" around and cause itself any further injury. Do not use a gaff.
3. Use the right tools to remove the hooks. Needlenose pliers work well for fish hooked in the mouth, while a deep-throat dehooker or disgorger should be used for deeply hooked fish. Cut the leader close to the fish's mouth if hook removal is not possible. Never pull or jerk on the leader to remove a hook.
4. Release fish gently, and if the fish is stressed or exhausted, revive it by gently moving it forward through the water until it is able to swim off.

In the interest of good sportsmanship and good conservation...keep only what you need...release the rest.
